HAVE YOUR FILL

In the competitive world of cosmetic fillers, the name of the game is longevity. The latest to propose such is Juvéderm Ultra and Ultra Plus (from $500 per syringe, juvederm.ca)—both made of hyaluronic acid, found naturally in our bodies and able to hold more than 1,000 times its own weight in water. Manufactured using what the company calls Hylacross technology, the process renders it a “smooth, very malleable gel,” compared to other HA fillers, which are “more granular,” says Toronto cosmetic dermatologist Dr. Fred Weksberg. Not only does this enable doctors to “mould it and give a very natural look, but this technology also makes it last longer,” because the enzymes that eventually break down the filler have “less of an opportunity to do so.”
